A Night of Mysterious Drama Awaits at Western Reserve Historical Society
The 3rd Annual Young Professionals Murder Mystery Event will feature A-list characters solving a murder committed within the walls of a historic Cleveland mansion

CLEVELAND, OH—Join the Western Reserve Historical Society’s Young Professionals group as they host their 3rd annual Murder Mystery event on the evening of Saturday, October 26. Starting at 7:00 pm, visitors will be transformed into their assigned characters for the evening and sent on a whirlwind adventure to solve the murder mystery of a VIP guest.

Set to the theme of “Tinseltown,” this year’s murder mystery brings together characters from the silver screens and recording studios of pop culture. They’re all united under one spotlight at the after-party of the Academy Awards Show, and while socializing and schmoozing with their elite peers, a guest is suddenly found dead. The evening of Hollywood glamour takes a turn for the worse. The murder mystery will take guests throughout the historic Hay-McKinney mansion of the Western Reserve Historical Society and invite them to reveal the identity of the murderer in their midst.

Tickets are $35 per participant and include dinner and two drink tickets to the bar. Upon registration, those interested in participating can choose the level of involvement they wish to take on as either one of twenty main characters or as a general character. Throughout the evening, clues about each personality and their involvement will be gathered, explained, and reviewed carefully as guests inch closer to solving the mystery. Tickets are available online at www.wrhs.org.
