This year, it is with great pleasure that Western Reserve Historical Society (WRHS) continues its 150th celebration. WRHS is the trusted steward of the rich history of our region. Founded in 1867 on Cleveland’s Public Square, WRHS has been collecting and sharing the fascinating stories of Northeast Ohio and America for 150 years.

Today, WRHS serves more than 180,000 people – including 36,000 students – and owns and operates six sites located in four counties of Northeast Ohio. With more than one million items in our Library and Museum collections, WRHS has one of the nation’s finest collections relating to the American experience.

On the occasion of our sesquicentennial, WRHS celebrates 150 years of sharing stories – stories of immigrants and influencers, civic pride and social justice, philanthropy and responsibility, innovation and creativity, family and community. For our 150th anniversary, WRHS opened Cleveland Starts Here® sponsored by the Jack, Joseph and Morton Mandel Foundation at the Cleveland History Center as our gift to the community. If you have not yet had the opportunity, I invite you to visit and find yourself in the story of Cleveland.

This year, WRHS celebrates the 60th anniversary of Hale Farm & Village in the heart of the Cuyahoga Valley. In 1810 Jonathan Hale and his family settled in the Cuyahoga Valley and began a tradition of farming, family and entrepreneurship. In 1956, Clara Belle Ritchie, the great granddaughter of Jonathan bequeathed the family farm to the Western Reserve Historical Society, “to be established as a museum so that the greatest number of persons must learn about the history and culture of the Western Reserve.” The museum first opened its doors in 1958, and over the course of the next 60 years the Hale family farm was transformed into an experiential learning laboratory. Today, we continue the traditions of the Hale family and celebrate 60 years of delivering experiences that provide a lifetime of social value.

WRHS is proud to be the trusted steward of our rich regional heritage, and equally proud to be among those now envisioning an even brighter future for the people of Northeast Ohio.
WRHS OVERVIEW
